Technology and digital platforms are redefining human relationships.

Healthy relationships are of course a key determinant of #health and well-being. This was the impetus for our Health Promotion, Gambler's Help and Youth & Family services, to set up an action research project into the relationship between technology and well-being. The project was called Teens and Screens and the findings were recently showcased at a forum.

The event was an opportunity to present the repor... See More
